Positive Behavioral Support in the Classroom: Principles and Practices

Table of Contents

About the Authors
Foreword Diane Lea Ryndak
Introduction
Acknowledgments

I. The Origins of Positive Behavioral Support

1. Understanding Public Education’s Responses to Challenging Behavior
   Defining and Responding to Challenging Behavior
   Purpose of Education, Perceptions of Behavior, and Impact on Practices: General Education
   Purpose of Education, Perceptions of Behavior, and Impact on Practices: Special Education
   Tides of Change

2. Perspectives on the Amelioration of Challenging Behavior
   Historical Perspective
   Contemporary Approaches to Addressing Challenging Behaviors
   Social Discipline Model
   Quality School Model
   Ecological Model
   Behavioral Model
   Cognitive-Behavioral Model
   Multiple Intelligences Model
   Judicious Discipline Model
   Seeds of Positive Behavioral Support

3. Designing Theoretically Sound Classroom Practices to Guide Student Learning and Behavior with Ginny Helwick
   Theory in Educational Practice
   Belief Systems, Teaching Pedagogies, Personal Philosophies, and Learning Theories
   Five Principles of Learning
   The Gap Between Theory and Practice
   The Dominant Research Paradigm and its Repercussions
   An Alternative Paradigm and its Implications
   Conclusion and a Look Ahead

II. Understanding and Characterizing the Support Process

4. General Considerations for Positive Behavioral Support
   When Discipline and Treatment Approaches Come Together
   Outcome Issues
   Unaddressed Outcomes
   Outcomes from an Educative Perspective
   Practice Issues
   Methodological Considerations
Social Justice Considerations
Community Rights and Needs Issues
Individual Rights versus the Rights of Others
What Research Says
The Task Ahead

5. Critical Processes within Behavioral Support
   Person-Centered Planning
   Five Distinguishing Features of Person-Centered Planning
   Additional Characteristics of Person-Centered Planning
   The Person-Centered Planning Advantage
   The Role of Relationships in the Support Process
   Relationships as Factors in Behavioral Change and Learning
   Relationships as Factors in Sustaining Change
   Promoting Relationships Between Educators and Students
   Hypothesis-Based Intervention
   The Coming of Age of Hypothesis-Based Intervention
   Developing Support-Oriented Hypotheses for Behavior
   Components of Effective Hypothesis-Based Interventions
   Crisis Support: Responding to Challenging Behaviors
   The Crisis Cycle
   Guidelines When Using Removal
   Synchronizing the Four Behavioral Support Processes

6. Facilitating Change to Enhance Behavioral Support for Students and the Community with Ginny Helwick
   Underlying Premises for Working with Change
   Viewing Systems as Complex, Dynamic Entities
   Overcoming Barriers to Understanding
   Positive Behavioral Support as Innovation
   Synthesis: The Co-construction of Understanding and Innovation in Complex Systems

Planning and Assessment for Positive Behavioral Support

7. Planning for Positive Behavioral Support
   Determine the Degree of Concern
   Plan the Intervention
   Gather Information
   Formulate Outcomes
   Delineate Hypotheses
   Generate Forecasts
   Initiate the Intervention
   Construct the Plan
   Recruit Resources
   Implement the Intervention
   Put in Place Educational and Environmental Changes
   Put in Place Professional Development
   Put in Place Incident Response and Crisis Procedures
   Ensure Critical Communications
   Ensure On-Demand Problem Solving
8. Support-Based Assessment
   Four Considerations in Support-Based Assessment
   The Cultural Context of the School
   Assessment Based on Differing Degrees of Concern
   Assessment and Intervention as a Continuous, Cyclical Process
   Social Validity
   Assessment for Creating the Intervention
   Functional Behavioral Assessment
   Participation in General Education Classes
   Assessment for Implementing the Intervention
   Put in Place Educational and Environmental Changes
   Put in Place Professional Development
   Put in Place Incident Response and Crisis Procedures
   Ensure Critical Communication
   Ensure On-Demand Problem Solving
   Evaluate Change in the Learner and the Community
   Guided Inquiry Revisited

IV. Positive Behavioral Support Practices and Their Applications

   Affective Supports
   Schedule and Activity Supports
   Peer Supports
   Teacher Style Supports
   Self-Assessment of Support Practices
   Support Practices and the "Voice" of Students

10. Developing and Implementing Solution-Focused Behavioral Support Plans with Ginny Helwick, Marjorie Z. Leon, Shanda Harrell Schlagenhauf, and Sunhi Bak
    Traditional Planning and Intervention Practices
    An Aggregation of Present Practices
    Limitations
    A Different Paradigm: Solution-Focused Behavioral Support
    Three Fundamental Concepts of Solution-Focused Behavioral Support
    Overview of Solution-Focused Planning
    Components of a Solution-Focused Behavior Intervention Plan
    Developing and Initiating a Solution-Focused Plan
    Understanding Precipitating Circumstances
    Creating the Plan
    Formalizing the Plan
    Goals, Decisions, and Recommendations: A Brief Example
    Implementing and Revising a Solution-Focused Plan
    Educational and Environmental Changes, Critical Communications, and Problem Solving Professional Development, Incident Response and Crisis Procedures, and Evaluating Learner and Community Changes
An Illustration of Solution-Focused Planning
Precipitating Conditions
Plan Development
Brief Synopsis of Implementation Results
Critical Responses to Some Pressing Questions
Appendix: Solution-Focused Behavior Intervention Planning Form for Steve

11. Developing and Implementing Long-Term, Comprehensive Behavioral Support Plans
   An Illustration of the Full Process
   Precipitating Conditions
   Plan the Intervention
   Initiate the Intervention
   Implement the Intervention
   Revise the Intervention
   Planning Crisis Intervention and Support for Escalating Behaviors
   Overview of Escalation Support Planning
   The Six-Step Planning Process
   Behavioral Support, Reintegration, and School Capacity
   Appendix: Elements of a Comprehensive Plan and Example Components from Brian's Plan

V. Positive Behavioral Support at the School and Community Levels

12. Preparing Schools for Positive Behavioral Support
   Changing a School’s Culture and Climate to Promote Positive Behavioral Support
   Schoolwide Mission Statement
   Schoolwide Policies and Procedures for Discipline
   Collaborative Professional Development
   Principles of Organizational Change
   Large-Scale Systemic Restructuring
   Comprehensive Evaluation
   Schoolwide Approaches that Are Consistent with Positive Behavioral Support
   Democratic Schools
   Schoolwide Behavior Management Systems
   Caring Schools: Child Development Project
   Conflict Resolution Schools
   Wraparound Planning
   Synthesis: Five Motifs

Epilogue
Creating a Positive Social Science
Wide Awakeness
References
Suggested Readings
Appendix: Intervention Planning Forms
Index