

Improve inferencing, reasoning, and critical thinking skills with Webber® Photo Cards – What Are They Saying? Each of the 60 clever, full-color photos in this deck has a person with a speaking bubble above his/her head. Students use the clues in the photo to infer what the person might be saying. You can also use the photos to encourage conversational speech or as writing prompts.

Who Said It?: Choose four cards and place them faceup in a row in front of the students. The first player makes up a statement for one of the cards and says it aloud. The other students must guess which card the statement goes with. The first player to guess correctly keeps the card. Add another card to the row and the next player makes up another statement. Play continues clockwise. The player with the most cards wins.

Story Starters: Each player takes one photo card and writes a story about it. Make sure students include the events that take place before and after the scenes on their cards! Have the students read or tell their stories to the group.

Minute Master: Shuffle the deck and place the cards face down in a pile. The first player takes a card. Using a stopwatch or timer, the first player has one minute to think of as many possible statements for the speaking bubble on his/her card as possible. Award one point for each appropriate statement. Play continues clockwise. The player with the most points wins.
