I'm Kiko.
I'm a happy camper!
I can grow grateful, too.
Let me show you how.

My class goes on lots of field trips. Ms. Cooper has taken us to the art museum, the state capitol, and even to a bakery, but never camping. I was excited! I counted the days until we left!

Do you want to know something else?
Part of me was nervous about camping, too.

When I asked my dad what he was bringing for us to eat, he told me that he and my mom weren't going.

“Why not?”

“Well, this trip is for you, Jasmine, and all your classmates and Ms. Cooper. Besides, someone has to look out for Chico.”

My dad bent down, scooped me up, and tossed me high in the air as I squealed.

“Not so high!”

I was thankful that someone would be there to keep Chico company.
